MERCHANTS OF OGDEN
FOR LOW PRICES
ON FOODSTUFFS

Soaring Prices on Sugar Likely at an End—Berries Scarce in Market.

Foodstuffs have been soaring, and soaring, and soaring, until the soaring has gone quite beyond reason and the housewife, as well as the dealer, has been driven to exasperation. The housewife is very much concerned as to how she can make ends meet in feeding the big and little mouths around the table. The merchant is dissatisfied because he realizes that high prices lead to lesser consumption. His margin of profits is just the same as when the prices are lower.

but he is compelled to invest more money to carry his stock when prices are high. The merchant also is called upon daily to make explanations because of the high price charged for certain foodstuffs, many of the customers believing the merchant is responsible for the condition, when, as a matter of fact, he has no control over the first price on goods he carries.

Sugar has gone to the highest point, the dealers believe, and it is so high that it almost takes the housewife's breath when the youngsters use three and four teaspoonsful of sugar in a cup of tea or coffee. It is quite certain that she will try to induce them to use only about one spoonful. Beet sugar is now selling at about $9 a sack, wholesale, and the retail price is about ten cents a pound, the cane sugar going at about 25 cents per hundred pounds higher. The dealer believes it will not be higher and that, very likely, the price will recede. The cause of this enormous price is said to be, "there is war in Europe," and the demand for the sweet food has greatly increased, and the production decreased. Be this as it may, the merchant of Ogden is not to blame and the people of this city should understand that.

Strawberries and other small fruit are scarce in this section of the country and, necessarily, selling on the market at rather high figures. Strawberries are worth 15 cents a cup and it is quite likely that the price will not diminish to a very great extent. Frost played havoc with the fruit crop, in some instances almost stripping the trees. A few strawberries were imported from Brigham City this week and they are said to be fairly good quality. Gooseberries will soon be quite plentiful on the market and it is not expected that the price will be greater than last season. Only certain kinds of cherries will be in evidence in anything like large quantities and home apricots are almost out of the question.

Ogden merchants conducting first class grocery stores and butcher shops are honest, conscientious business men, content with small profits. They want volume of business and are ready to make the closest possible prices on everything they carry. On this page of the Standard some of them are exhibiting to the consumer the goods they have in stock and telling something of the price lists.

MAN WHO VOTED AGAINST WILSON

St. Louis, June 15.—Robert Emmett Burke, who voted against Wilson because of the president's attitude toward Germany, starred tonight for the first time in many years. The hisses that greeted his lone vote against Woodrow Wilson were music to "Bobby's" soul. They put him back in the political game, with a mention in the papers and an assurance that he would be talked about for at least a day in all corners of the United States. He voiced all the opposition there was to Wilson in the Democratic party.

Once a power in Chicago politics, Burke of recent years has possessed no greater distinction than the secretaryship of a Cook county Democratic club and custodian of the county building. In the early terms of the second Carter Harrison as mayor of Chicago, "Bobby" Burke was a boss. Along about the time last spring that the Sullivan and Harrison organizations were getting ready their national delegate petitions for filing at Springfield, Burke waddled into the room of National Committeeman Charles Boeschenstein at the Hotel Sherman. State Chairman Arthur W. Charles was present.

Burke drew from his pocket a petition for a place on the ballot as an uninstructed delegate at large.
